The Master of Real Estate Development (MRED) offered through The University of Arizona College of Architecture, Planning, and Landscape Architecture’s (CAPLA) is a degree focusing on sustainable and responsible development: public/private partnerships, transit-oriented development, and health and wellness. The MRED is ideal for professionals interested in better understanding the real estate industry as a whole, as well as those who are or intend to be real estate developers and industry leaders.

THE PROGRAM

- Collaborate with our faculty of world-renowned experts—from diverse disciplines such as finance, marketing, architecture, landscape architecture, planning, construction, and law—to create a sense of place and community in the Sun Corridor, the nation’s fastest-growing learning lab.
- Connect with industry from day one through networking opportunities, membership in key professional organizations, and access to key stakeholders in development, design, construction, and research.
- Focus on leadership, entrepreneurialism, and creative thinking to enhance your skills and advance your career.
- Emphasis on sustainable real estate development.
- Program designed for professionals with 3–5 years of experience.
- Curriculum utilizing real-world case studies.
- Small class size to facilitate high level of interaction and engagement.